

EITC

ELIGIBILITY CHECKLIST FOR

TAX YEAR 2015

You can claim the EITC if you answer YES to all the following questions:

YES NO

1. Do you, your spouse (if filing a joint return) and any child listed on Schedule EIC each have a SSN that is valid for employment? If any person is filing with an ITIN or ATIN, you must answer NO.
2. Is your filing status married filing jointly, head of household, qualifying widow(er) or single? Answer NO, if your filing status is married filing separately. Note: If you are married and lived with your spouse at any time during the last six months of 2015, your only filing status options are married filing jointly or married filing separately. For more information, refer to Publication 501. Caution: If you are a nonresident alien or your spouse is a nonresident alien, see Publication 519, U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens, on how to answer this question.
3. Answer YES if you are not filing Form 2555 or Form 2555-EZ. If you file Form 2555 or Form 2555 EZ, you must answer NO.
4. Is your investment income $3,400 or less?
5. Is your total earned income* at least $1 and both your total earned income and adjusted gross income (AGI)* less than: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• $14,820 ($20,330 if married filing joint) if you do not have a qualifying child• $39,131 ($44,651 married filing jointly) if you have one qualifying child• $44,454 ($49,974 married filing jointly) if you have two qualifying children• $47,747 ($53,267 married filing jointly) if you have three or more qualifying children
6. Answer YES if you (and your spouse if filing a joint return) are not a qualifying child of another person. See the other side of this form for details on the age, residency, joint return, and relationship tests for a qualifying child. Otherwise, if you (or your spouse if filing a joint return) meet the age, residency, joint return, and relationship tests to be a qualifying child of another person, you must answer NO.

STOP If you have a child or children you want to claim, answer questions 7, 8, 9, and 10 for each child and skip 11, 12, and 13. If you do NOT have a qualifying child, skip questions 7, 8, 9, and 10 and answer 11, 12, and 13.

7. Does the child meet the age, residency, joint return, and relationship tests for a qualifying child for you (or your spouse if filing a joint return)? (See the other side of this form for details on the tests)
8. Is the child younger than you (or your spouse if filing a joint return)? Also, answer YES if the child is permanently and totally disabled.
9. If the child is married and filed a joint tax return, answer NO, unless the child and the child's spouse filed the joint return only to claim a refund. If the exception applies, answer YES. If the child did not file a joint return, answer, YES.
10. Are you the only one who can claim this child? See if you can say yes to one of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Check YES, if the child did not live with any other person for more than half the year.• Check YES, if the child also lived with another person but does not have not one of the qualifying relationships with that person.• Check YES, if the child lived with another person, has a qualifying relationship with that person, the person is not the child's parent, and the person is not claiming EITC or any other tax benefit listed on the back of this form for the same child.• Check YES, if the child also lived with a parent or parents for more than half the year, your adjusted gross income is higher than that of any parent who can claim the child, and a parent is not claiming EITC or any other tax benefits listed on the back of this form using the same child.• Check YES, if the child lived with another person, has a qualifying relationship with that person, and you are the one who can treat the child as your qualifying child under the tie-breaker rules given on the back of this form. If none of the above is true, you must check NO. CAUTION: If you think another person might claim the child, it is best to make sure who qualifies to claim the child and who will claim the child. If more than one person claims the same child, you could lose the credit and have to pay it back with penalties and interest. See the tie-breaker rules on the back of this form.

If you answered YES to questions 1 through 10, you can claim the EITC. Remember to fill out Schedule EIC, Earned Income Credit, with the name and Social Security number of each child and attach it to your Form 1040 or 1040A. You cannot use Form 1040EZ. If you answered NO to question 7, 8, 9 or 10 go back to question 6 to see if you can claim EITC without a qualifying child.

11. Was your main home (and your spouse's if filing a joint return) in the United States* for more than half the year?
12. Were you (or your spouse if filing a joint return) at least age 25 but under age 65 at the end of 2015?
13. Answer YES if you (and your spouse if filing a joint return) cannot be claimed as a dependent on anyone else's return. Answer NO if you (or your spouse if filing a joint return) can be claimed as a dependent on someone else's return.

Persons without a qualifying child: If you answered YES to questions 1 through 6, and 11, 12 and 13, you can claim the EITC.

Qualifying child tests for EITC

A child must meet certain requirements to be a qualifying child for EITC. The following chart shows the four tests: relationship, age, joint return, and residency. The child must meet all four tests.

1 Relationship

Son, daughter, stepchild, foster child, brother, sister, half brother, half sister, step brother, step sister, or a descendant of any of them

2 Age

Be younger than the person (or spouse if filing a joint return) claiming EITC and

- Under age 19 at the end of the tax year or
- Under age 24 at the end of the tax year and a full time student or, any age and permanently and totally disabled at any time during the year

3 Joint Return

Did not file a joint return for 2015 or filed a joint return only to claim a refund

4 Residency

Lived with the person (or spouse if filing a joint return) claiming EITC in the United States for more than half of 2015.

(special rules apply for a member of the military on extended duty outside the United States, visit www.irs.gov/eitc or see Publication 596 for more information)

Tie-breaker rules

Sometimes a child meets the rules to be a qualifying child of more than one person. If the child is the qualifying child of more than one person, only one person can claim the child as a qualifying child for all of the following tax benefits:

- EITC,
- Dependency exemption for the child,
- Child tax credit,
- Head of household filing status,
- Credit for child and dependent care expenses, and
- Exclusion for dependent care benefits.

The other person(s) cannot take any of the six tax benefits listed above unless he or she has a different qualifying child. If more than one person actually claims tax benefits using the same child, the tie-breaker rules (explained in the next paragraph) apply. Special rules apply for children of divorced or separated parents. See Publication 596 for more information.

Under the tie-breaker rules, the child is treated as a qualifying child only by:

1. The parents, if they file a joint return;
2. The parent, if only one of the persons is the child's parent;
3. The parent with whom the child lived longer during the tax year, if two of the persons are the child's parents and they do not file a joint return together;
4. The parent with the higher AGI, if the child lived with each parent for the same amount of time during the tax year, and they do not file a joint return together;
5. The person with the highest AGI, if no parent can claim the child as a qualifying child; or
6. A person with AGI higher than any parent who can also claim the child as a qualifying child but does not.
