Statistics of Income

Active Partnership Returns

1957-1983

The Partnership Source Book provides key income statement data items from active partnership returns, Form 1065, for years 1957-1983. Subsequent years' data will be added as they become available.

Each page contains data for a particular industry. There are 254 industries at the division, major and minor levels. Although the accounting periods of returns included in any one year vary from periods ending in July of the current year to June of the subsequent year, most returns covered the calendar period of the current year.

This publication was prepared by Paul Rose under the direction of Sandra Barker, Chief, Corporation Operations Section, Corporation Statistics Branch. The data processing support was provided by Roylene Gomillion, Susan Jager and Nancy Ahn. Dawn Alexander provided the typing support.

Description of Data

The statistics have been derived from a stratified probability sample of Forms 1065 (Partnerships) selected during revenue processing but prior to audit examination. Consequently, the sample of returns produces estimates which differ from a complete enumeration. In general, there were sufficient returns to yield estimates which vary within an acceptable confidence interval. Footnotes are used to identify those estimates which are subject to excessive sampling variability. The footnotes "*" and "#", explained in the interpretation of footnotes, designate those estimates subject to excessive sampling variability. Returns of the largest partnerships are generally in the sample from year to year.

Industry Classification

The basis of the industry classifier is the 1972 version of the Standard Industrial Classification system adapted for businesses filing with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).[1] The codes used for the application of that system for source book purposes are shown beginning on page 17. From 1957-1976 the partnerships were assigned the industry code which accounted for more of total receipts than any other. From 1977-1983 partnerships were assigned the industry code which accounted for more of total assets than any other. The reason for this change was the need to accurately implement the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1976 which required the identification of businesses in certain industrial activities closely associated with tax shelters. There was also much investment activity in the seventies which brought income (receipts) to partnerships from sources apart from their customary business operations. As a result, assets would be a more accurate basis for determining industry than gross receipts.

Although the partnership return represents an enterprise (company), the problem of industry classification for a company of more than one establishment (and thus, possibly, more than one business activity) is not a substantial problem for partnerships because they are primarily single establishment companies.[2] Furthermore, unlike corporations which are permitted to file consolidated returns of multiple companies with a common parent (affiliated companies), the partnership is not permitted to consolidate the operation of two or more companies in filing Form 1065.

The industries used in this report followed the SOI classification for year 1980. Where the industry classification differs in any prior year from the 1980 classification, the data were moved from the prior year industry to the 1980 classification in which the returns would have been classified if they were 1980 returns. If a 1980 industry was not present in a prior year, a line for that industry and year was printed with dashes instead of data and a general footnote was printed on that line to refer the reader to the industry page(s) in which data of that industry were included. If the prior year classification was more detailed than 1980, the data were added to the prior year industry corresponding to the 1980 classification. Where the prior year industry is present but less comprehensive than the 1980 industry, a general footnote is shown for the prior year industry to indicate the exclusion in that year. On the other hand where the prior year was more comprehensive, a general footnote is shown to indicate the broader coverage of the prior year industry, if the data could not be moved to the 1980 classification.

The only difference between the SOI classification and the Source Book industries is the title for General Livestock. This industry grouping excluded data on the industry Animal Speciality from years 1967-1978. After 1978 most SOI publications included data on Animal Speciality with General Livestock. As a result, the name of the General Livestock industry was changed from "General Livestock except Animal Speciality" to "General Livestock including Animal Speciality". However, in order to maintain identification with prior years' data, the Source Book title is shown as "General Livestock except Animal Speciality" and a footnote on that industry page indicates that the data for Animal Speciality are also included from 1978-1983.

Year to year comparability may have been affected by the method of assigning industry codes in years 1957-1976, i.e. where the industry accounting for the largest share of receipts changed from year to year due to a relatively small change in the total receipts. Thus, time series data may be understated or overstated for those years in which small changes affected the assignment of industries. The comparability of IRS data is also affected by changes in law, rulings and regulations. For this reason a summary of major legislation affecting partnership data will be found beginning on page 9. Legislative changes affecting Source Book data items are shown on a chart by year and data item on page 8.

Definition of Terms

Business Receipts

From 1957-1962 Business Receipts was defined as gross receipts from sales and services less rebates, returns and allowances. The restriction of the definition to include only sales and services was for the purpose of reflecting income from only the principal business activity of the partnership, which for most industries was sales and services. However, since some industries in the division Finance, Insurance and Real Estate reported income from principal business activities other than sales or services, Business Receipts for partnerships in Finance, Insurance and Real Estate was understated.

Starting with 1963, income from rents was included in Business Receipts if the industry of the partnership was a real estate operation or in certain Manufacturing, Transportation or Service industries, and rents was the chief source of Total Income. The Manufacturing industries designated for this treatment were those which rented rather than sold their products, such as certain manufacturers of electronic equipment. The Transportation industries designated for this treatment were lessors of dock, warehouses and pipeline facilities. The Service industry designated for this treatment was automobile rental agencies. By 1965, rent was included in Business Receipts for all industries if it was the largest source of Total Income, and as such was considered the income from normal operations.

In 1963, Business Receipts was also expanded to include banking income such as fees, commissions, trust department earnings, service charges etc, but interest income of banks and savings institutions was not included in Business Receipts until 1965, when like rents, it was included if the interest accounted for the largest source of Total Income.

Another 1963 modification of Business Receipts was made in the case of two industries - Security and Commodity Brokers and Services and Real Estate Operators. If cost of sales exceeded 50 percent of sales and services for any partnership, it was subtracted from Business Receipts and no cost of sales was shown. This treatment continued through 1972 for Real Estate Operators and through 1980 for Security and Commodity Brokers and Services. In addition, this modification was made in 1977 for partnerships in Banking and Miscellaneous Finance.

For years 1969 and 1970, Total Income rather than Business Receipts was tabulated. Business receipts were on the average 3 1/2% less for all industries except Farm Operations and Finance, Insurance and Real Estate, where Business Receipts were substantially smaller. Partnerships in agriculture reported a relatively large percentage of total receipts from payments for off-season machine rentals, and patronage dividends (cooperatives), Federal gasoline taxes taken as credits, agriculture program payments and loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation. Also, when there is a price boom in retail gasoline or real estate, farmers may sell off stored gasoline (in the off season) and relatively unproductive farmland. Partnerships in Finance, Insurance and Real Estate usually have substantial income from interest and rents (not included in partnership business receipts)

In 1971, there were further changes in the definition of Business Receipts. Business Receipts was redefined to exclude receipts from the sale of livestock for draft, breeding, dairy or sporting purposes where the livestock had been held for at least two years. Similarly, receipts from the sale of livestock for all other purposes which had been held for at least one year was also excluded from Business Receipts. These transactions were not considered part of farm business routine operations but rather gain (or loss) from sale of capital properties.

Since 1972, Business Receipts was defined to include total receipts for all partnerships classified in Finance, Insurance and Real Estate. From 1981-1983, Business Receipts included only the net income from farming and rental operations rather than the gross as was included in the definition in prior years.

Depreciation

Depreciation is an allowable deduction from taxable income to compensate for the exhaustion, wear and obsolescence of property with an expected life of more than one year, and used in a trade or business or held for production of income. Since 1958, the definition of property was expanded to include leasehold improvements, patents and copyrights. Three general methods of depreciation are recognized as allowable. They are the straight line method, in which the same proportion of expired "life" is charged off as depreciation, declining balance, and sum of years digits methods. The latter two methods permit a larger expense deduction in the earlier "life" of the property. The declining balance method permits a rate of depreciation higher than the straight line rate. The sum of years digits uses an arithmetic series starting with the number of years of expected life for the first year and declining by one for each succeeding year the property is still retained in the business. The sum of this series becomes the divisor which when divided into the expected life for each year is the rate of depreciation for that year. Since 1958, a portion of the depreciation allowable (additional first year depreciation) is not reflected in the data shown here because it was not permitted as a depreciation expense for the partnership itself but only as a reduction of taxable income of the partners (business owners). In effect, the partnership business "passed-through" the depreciation expense directly to the partners without showing it as a reduction of the business taxable income.

In 1962, the IRS prescribed guidelines for depreciable lives by classes of property based on the industrial activity for which the property was used (Revenue Procedure 62-21). The guidelines were amplified in 1965 by Procedure 65-13. Although, in general, expected lives were shortened, only about 5% of partnerships made use of optional procedures to reduce expected lives and increase early years' depreciation expense.

After 1969, the declining balance method on recently acquired real property was limited to rates not in excess of 150% of the straight line rate and only the straight line was permitted on real property acquired in prior years. However, newly built residential property could be depreciated at a rate up to twice the straight line rate and certain old residential property could be depreciated at a rate up to 125% of the straight line rate.

Additional flexibility in depreciation practices was permitted after 1971 when a range of expected life was available for assets (property) based on type of property and year of acquisition. One effect of this was to permit property life to vary 20% from the life established by the 1962 guidelines. Also, "excess" repairs were permitted to be capitalized and thus subject to depreciation.

In addition, the planting, cultivating, maintenance, and development expenses incurred within 4 years of planting of certain fruit trees had to be depreciated rather than deducted in the year they were actually incurred.

After 1976, the cost of raising poultry was permitted to be capitalized and thus depreciation expense could be increased for those engaging in that business activity.

Interest Paid

Interest Paid is the interest acquired or paid on business indebtedness. It includes interest paid to partners for loans apart from their invested capital. Interest paid by banks and savings institutions on deposits and shares are shown here. Starting in 1975, interest paid on contract installment purchases was included. However, since 1980 interest paid on loans used to purchase investment property was no longer tabulated along with other interest because such payments were not reported on the main body of the tax return.

Net Income (Less Deficit)

See Net Profit (Less Loss). In earlier years of processing Statistics of Income, Net Income was defined as Net Profit.

Net Profit (Less Loss)

In 1957, Net Profit (Less Loss) was defined as the difference between Business Receipts on the one hand and the sum of Cost of Goods Sold plus Total Deductions on the other. Total Deductions did not include deductions for charitable contributions. Net Profit did not include net farm profit (or loss), income or loss from other partnerships, certain dividends, taxable interest, rents and royalties, net gain (or loss) from sale of non-capital assets, or certain miscellaneous income not connected with operation of the business. These exclusions were generally considered passive income not attributed to the normal business activity. However, the Net Profit of companies classified in the Finance, Insurance and Real Estate industrial division was defined to include the passive income excluded in the definition of Net Profit for other companies. Thus, Net Profit for those companies in the Finance, Insurance and Real Estate industries was the same as "ordinary income", a term used in U.S. tax reporting. Capital gains (losses) and certain other income and deduction items were neither included in Net Profit nor Ordinary Income, but rather passed through the partnership and were attributable to the partners (owners). Therefore, these items were includable in the returns filed by the partners.

Partnership Source Book 1957-1983

In 1959, the Net Profit (Less Loss) was redefined and determined to be identical to Ordinary Income for all industries. Therefore, passive and investment income such as income or loss from other partnerships, certain dividends, taxable interest, rents and royalties, net farm profit, and net gain (or loss) from sale of non-capital assets etc. were taken into account in computing Net Profit (Less Loss). Charitable contributions, capital gains (losses) and certain other items continued to be passed through the partnership and allocated to the partners who were required to include them in filing their returns.

After 1975, net profits of farming syndicates were not reduced by the amount of feed, seed, fertilizer and other supplies which were purchased in the tax (current) year but not consumed by the end of that year.

The use of net profit as a measure of return on capital investment is somewhat distorted by the fact that guaranteed payments to partners is an allowable deduction reducing Net Profit.

Number of Partnerships

The Number of Partnerships is the number of active partnership returns less duplicate returns filed for the same business. An active partnership return is one in which there is at least one income or deduction item on the tax return.

After 1965, duplicate returns were included if the time period covered by each of the duplicates was different and the assets of the duplicated business would not lead to a serious over-estimate of total assets. In theory, such duplicates may represent other returns omitted from the sample because of late filing or the cut-off for the receipt of sample returns.

After 1966, partnerships which were (1) involved in only investment activities or (2) joint ventures subject to production, extraction or use agreements that do not involve the active conduct of complete business operations (such as selling), or (3) securities brokers, may elect under IRS code 761 not to be considered partnerships for tax return filing purposes. It is believed that most of the partners electing not to file partnership returns were involved in the production of oil and natural gas. Partners can be individuals, estates, other partnerships or corporations.

Number of Partners

The Number of Partners included both active and non-active owners. The former were responsible for business operations. The latter were either investors or limited partners.

Partnership Source Book 1957-1983

Definition of Terms

Payments to Partners

Payments to Partners were guaranteed payments or credits pursuant to contract which were made for services rendered by the partners or for the use of capital loaned by the partners. Payments are made without regard to the profit of the partnership. To the extent they exceed the market value of services rendered over the cost of borrowed capital, these payments may actually be an additional return on the partner's investment. However, all of these payments are treated as deductions for the normal operating cost of doing business.

Payroll

Payroll is the sum of salaries and wages and the labor costs which are shown in the cost of goods sold schedule. It does not include guaranteed Payments to Partners.

Payroll not only includes compensation to employees but also the payment to independent contractors who provide labor. An example of this is the use of farm labor crew bosses to provide migrant farm labor. However, this is generally more than offset by the inclusion of employees commissions payments and fees for professional employee services in "other deductions" rather than in payroll. The net result is that payroll is somewhat understated for partnerships with large payrolls. Although, since 1977 payroll is shown net of jobs credit (rather than gross), the net payroll was more than 99.93% of gross payroll for years 1977-1982. Therefore, the deduction of jobs credit from payroll does not cause much distortion.

Taxes Paid

Taxes Paid includes taxes paid or accrued on business property, taxes paid or accrued as ordinary and necessary costs of doing business, and amounts identified as taxes in the cost of goods sold schedules of the tax return. Taxes not identified but present in the cost of goods sold, like those excise and sales taxes which are included in business receipts but are not separated, are not included in taxes paid. However, when excise and sales taxes are identified they are included as taxes paid. In general, these taxes are state and local taxes, federal import and excise duties, business license and privilege taxes, federal payroll taxes, and unemployment insurance taxes, etc. Not included in such taxes are federal income, excess profits taxes, and estate and gift taxes. Up to 1976, foreign income taxes were included unless the partners elected their pro-rata share of those taxes for foreign tax credit purposes. However, starting with 1976 such taxes were not included because they were "passed through" and attributed to the partners who would in turn include the taxes in their income tax returns and as a result claim a tax credit for foreign income taxes.

Selected History of Legislative Changes

The following chart shows the year effective, the legislation name, and the possible impact of the major legislation affecting partnerships.

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1958	Small Business Tax Revision Act of 1958	Established Small Business Corporations and decreased number of partnerships. Additional first year depreciation increased depreciation and reduced net income.
1961	Public Law 86-564	Reduction of gross income for depletion computation attributable to Mining thereby reducing depletion allowance and increasing net income.
1962	Revenue Procedure 62-21	New procedures for determining lives of depreciable assets permitting shorter lives and thereby increasing depreciation deductions and reducing net income.
1963	Revenue Act of 1962	Clearing land for farming could be deductible thereby decreasing net income. Income base available for percentage depletion in mineral exploration reduced by the gain on sale of depreciable property, thereby reducing depletion allowance and increasing net income.

Selected History of Legislative Changes

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1963	Self-employed Individuals Retirement Act of 1963	For businesses with owner-employee retirement plans, retirement fund required for certain employees, deductible for ordinary income thus decreasing net income.
1964	Revenue Act of 1964	Difference between straight line depreciation and accelerated depreciation in the sale of buildings which result in gains no longer treated as capital gains. This would increase net income.
1965	Revenue Procedure 65-13	Increased the amount of depreciation claimed and as a result reduced net income.
1967	Public Law 89-809	Percentage depletion allowance for certain ' Other Mining ' operations was increased thereby reducing net income.
1969-1970	Tax Reform Act of 1969	Limits were set on accelerated depreciation of real property (land other than residential rental property). These are 150% of straight line for new property and 100% straight line for used property. New residential rental property limited to 200% of straight line and certain used residential rental property limited to 125% of straight line. These may have decreased depreciation and increased net income. However, amortization could be accelerated on low income rental housing thereby reducing net income for Real Estate investment.

Selected History of Legislative Changes

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1969-1970	Tax Reform Act of 1969 (continued)	Depreciation expenses for coal mine safety equipment and pollution control facilities could be transferred to amortization, but shorter asset lives meant reduction in net income. Net casualty and theft losses became deductible from ordinary income thus reducing net income after 1969. After 1969 citrus grove expenses on trees less than 4 years old must be capitalized instead of deducted from ordinary income, thus increasing net income. This was one of the first restrictions on tax shelters in Agriculture. Percentage depletion was reduced for many minerals. The maximum rate for oil and gas was reduced to 22 percent. This increased net income in Mining. Gains on the sale of livestock as a result of depreciation (after 1969) were included in ordinary income thus increasing net income for Agriculture.

Selected History of Legislative Changes

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1971	Revenue Act of 1970	Class life asset depreciation range system was instituted allowing 20 percent change in assets lives from existing rules. Salvage value was lower limit of depreciation. Depreciation could increase thus reducing net income. Expenses on almond groves less than 4 years old must be capitalized instead of deducted from ordinary income, thus increasing net income in Agriculture. Capital expenses on property used for training or child-care centers could be amortized over a short 5 year period, thus reducing net income.
1973	Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) of 1973	Unemployment insurance taxes raised $8 per $100 on salaries $4,200 or less thus increasing the taxes paid and reducing net income.
1974	FUTA of 1974	This reversed FUTA of 1973 with respect to the change above.

Selected History of Legislative Changes

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1975	Tax Reduction Act of 1975	Repealed the 22 percent depletion allowance for foreign oil except for small producers. The maximum allowance was made 65 percent of net income in oil and gas producing properties, before depletion (current year). The small producer is one whose production was limited to 2,000 barrels of crude oil. This limitation was reduced 200 barrels a year until 1980. The reduction in depletion claimed increased net income from Mining, Oil and Gas. Income tax regulations pursuant to Section 471 of the code called for the full absorption method of inventory costing so that indirect as well as direct production costs are included in inventory. To the extent that indirect costs were included in unsold inventory, net income was increased compared to prior years when such costs could be charged off in the current year.
1976	Tax Reform Act of 1976	Amortization of film production and distribution costs is required. This increased net income for Services compared to prior years where cash method accounting permitted deduction of production costs from income.

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1976	Tax Reform Act of 1976 (continued)	Organization or syndication fees paid to organize or sell interest in partnerships were amortized over 5 years, compared to prior years in which these items were deducted at time of payment. This increases net income. Gain from the sale of oil and gas properties caused by deducting intangible drilling and development costs in prior years now included in net income of partnership rather than capital gain allocation to partners. This increased net income in the Mining industry. Excess in accelerated depreciation over straight line on the sale of residential real estate recaptured by including it in net income. Increased net income in Agriculture and Real estate. Net deficit attributed to partners in (1) farming (2) oil and gas extraction (3) motion picture production or distribution or (4) equipment leasing limited to amount invested plus loan liability (recourse loans). "At risk" provisions increased net income in Agriculture, Mining, and Services.

1976	Tax Reform Act of 1976 (continued)	Limit to additional first year depreciation that could be passed to partner set at $2,000. This increased depreciation expenses thus decreasing net income. Restrictions on farming syndicates: Expenses for feed, seed and fertilizer could only be deducted for year in which they were used; expenses of poultry purchased for sale could only be deducted for year(s) in which sold; and, most costs of groves, orchards or vineyards had to be depreciated. All of these changes tended to increase net income in Agriculture.
1977	FUTA of 1977	Taxes paid increased by .2 percent of salaries up to $4,200 per annum thus decreasing net income.
1977	Federal Insurance Contribution Act (FICA) of 1977	Taxes paid increased by .0585 times the increase in FICA tax base, ($1,200), decreasing net income.
1977	Revenue Act of 1977	There was an allowance of an additional 2 cents a mile for the cost of operating a motor vehicle during the first 15,000 miles, decreasing net income.
1977	Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977	Up to $100,000 could be claimed as a credit against salaries and wages for certain increases in payroll. Salaries and wages may be understated thus increasing net profit.

Year Effective	Legislation	Possible Impact on Data
1978	FUTA of 1978	The wage base subject to the 3.4% tax (unemployment) was increased $1,800 for each employee. Taxes paid increased and net income decreased.
1978	FICA of 1978	The wage base subject to the FICA tax increased $1,200 and the tax rate was increased slightly for each employee. Taxes paid increased and net income decreased.
1979	Revenue Act of 1979	The "at risk" provisions of 1976 which included 4 industries were revised so that loss deductions in all industries, except Real Estate, could not exceed investment plus loan liability. This should have increased net income in all industries except Real Estate. Contribution to retirement plans limited to 15% of compensation or $7,500 per employee. This may increase net income by limiting deductions.
1979	FICA of 1979	The FICA base was increased by $5,200 and the tax rate increased slightly for each employee. This increased taxes and reduced net income.
1980	FICA of 1980	The FICA base was increased by $6,800 and the rate increased slightly for each employee. This increased taxes and reduced net income.
1981	Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981	Established Accelerated Cost Recovery System which provides for more rapid cost recovery. Increased depreciation and reduced net income.

Footnotes and General Notes

There is a special footnote to the left of each printed column. Generally this footnote will be blank meaning no qualifications for the amount in the column to the right. The qualifications "*", "#", and "/" are interpreted as follows:

- * The amount in the column to the right is subject to excessive sampling variability and the amount was suppressed.
- # The amount in the column to the right is subject to excessive sampling variability but the amount is shown.
- / There is no amount shown in the column to the right because the data were not tabulated in the source used for that year.

The general note is a 1-3 digit numeric printed in the column at the right of the page. It describes any difference between the industry classification for any year and the 1980 classification. For example, in 1971 Horticultural Specialty, SOI industry 0180, was not tabulated separately but was included in Agricultural Production, Not Allocable, SOI industry 0300. Therefore, Agricultural Production, Not Allocable, was given footnote 6 to show that it included Horticultural Specialty. The general notes and their interpretations are shown in the following pages.
